Halting the biodiversity loss globally is my vision. IUCN plays a key role in this thanks to the broad scientific background. In the field of conservation, nature protection and sustainable use of natural resources, IUCN and its network of scientists and knowledge holders are paramount.

Political scientist by profession, I am working with international nature protection issues at the Ministry of the Environment, Finland

I have been serving as the secretary as well as Chair of the IUCN National Committee of Finland for many years which has given me the opportunity to learn to know the broad field of IUCN membership not only in Europe but also in Africa, Asia and South America.

I am the National Focal Point for the Convention on Biological Diversity in Finland. I'm interested in science-policy interfaces and in how to strengthen synergies between different biodiversity related agreements among other things.
